Food Inequality in D.C.

One World Student Ambassador: Nya Segears

4: Reflection Response

Respond to the Reflection in writing. Choose to respond to all of the General Questions or one of the Topic Questions using a suggested format. Your teacher may decide to assign one for you. Your response should be about 2-3 pages.

General Questions:

- What were the strengths and weaknesses of this Reflection? Be specific in your response, explaining why each element did or did not work.
- What did you learn from reading this Reflection?
- How can you personally connect to this Reflection?
- Evaluate the quality of evidence included in this reflection.
- Are there other important factors to consider when forming an opinion about food inequality that Nya should have considered in this Reflection?

Topic Questions:

- How does food inequality affect other cities in the U.S.? Research this topic and convey your findings.
- How have communities/cities around the U.S. addressed the problem of food inequality? Evaluate the solutions and propose the best one for D.C.
- What are all of the community resources and organizations that should be involved in addressing food inequality? What can each one do to help address the issue?

Formats:

- Letter: Compose a letter to your local or federal government. Make sure you follow formal letter guidelines in your response.
- Formal Email: Compose a formal email to your principal, or a leader of another community organization.
- Article: Use an objective tone. Ensure that you cover both sides of the discussion.
- Story: Write a creative narrative that incorporates as many details as possible, while still addressing the topic question appropriately.
